Direction for Questions No. 47 - 57 : Based on your understanding of the following passage, answer the question given below by choosing the most appropriate option:

The art of living is learned easily by those who are positive and optimistic. From humble and simple people to great leaders in history, science, or literature, we can learn a lot about the art of living by having a peep into their lives. The daily routines of these great men not only reveal their different, maybe unique, lifestyles but also help us learn certain habits and practices they followed. Here are some; read, enjoy, and follow in their footsteps as it suits you.

A private workplace always helps. Jane Austen asked that a certain squeaky hinge should never be oiled so that she always had a warning whenever someone was approaching the room where she wrote. William Faulkner, lacking a lock on his study door, detached the doorknob and brought it into the room with him. Mark Twain's family knew better than to breach his study door; they would blow a horn to draw him out. Graham Greene went even further, renting a secret office; only his wife knew the address and the telephone number. After all, everyone of us needs a workplace where we can work on our creations uninterruptedly. Equally, we need our private space too!

A daily walk has always been a source of inspiration. For many artists, a regular stroll was essentially a source of creative inspiration. Charles Darwin famously took three-hour walks every afternoon, and what he observed on them fed directly into his writing. Tchaikovsky could make do with a two-hour jaunt but wouldn't return a moment early, convinced that doing so would make him ill. Ludwig van Beethoven took lengthy strolls after lunch, carrying a pencil and paper with him in case inspiration struck. Nineteenth-century composer Erik Satie did the same on his long hikes from Paris to the working-class suburb where he lived, stopping under street lamps to jot down ideas that came on his journey; it's rumoured that when those lamps were turned off during the war years, his music declined too. Many great people had limited social lives too. One of Simone de Beauvoir's close friends puts it this way. 'There were no receptions or parties. It was an uncluttered kind of life, a simplicity deliberately constructed so that she could do her work'. To Pablo, the idea of Sunday was an 'at home day'.

The routines of these thinkers are difficult. Perhaps it is because they are so unattainable. The very idea that you can organise your time as you like is out of reach for most of us, so I'll close with a toast to all those who worked with difficulties. Like Francine Prose, who began writing when the school bus picked up her children and stopped when it brought them back; or T.S. Eliot, who found it much easier to write once he had a day job in a bank than he had as a starving poet; and even F. Scott Fitzgerald, whose early books were written in his strict schedule as a young military officer. Those days were not as interesting as the nights in Paris that came later, but they were more productive and no doubt easier on his liver.

Being forced to follow someone else's routine may irritate, but it makes it easier to stay on the path. Whenever we break that trail ourselves or take an easy path of least resistance, perhaps what's most important is that we keep walking.
